HUNT PRIEST IN AUTO CRASH

Nashua, N. H., May 8 (AP)—Police today were searching the woods near the Nashua-Merrimack line for the Rev. A. G. Thibault, 37-year-old priest, of Auburn, N. H., who was believed to have been injured in the wreck of his auto.

A man, believed to be Elton Zebulon of Manchester, was at Nashua hospital with serious injuries received in the accident. Cards in his clothing bore three Manchester addresses. He was found near the auto by Edward J. and Henry Maguire, brothers of Manchester, who were driving by.

They said that shortly before they arrived at the scene they had seen a man, apparently injured, walking along the highway. When they stopped to hail him he fled.

H. G. Wells on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and G. F. Wells

BOOK III. Chapter V. EVOLUTION OF MAN

This would be true of a dog as well as an ape, but the ape can get further than this. One chimpanzee studied by Prof. Kohler, though wholly untaught, had ideas of fitting on a stick into the hollow end of a banana in order to get a banana which was out of reach of either stick by itself; and to do that he anticipated experience by thought.

H. G. Wells

What concerns us here is the fact that chimpanzees and other forest apes do have this faculty of anticipating experience, of putting two and two together so as to deal with a new kind of situation in an intelligent way and that this power, in spite of the most careful tests, has never been detected in any lower animal, even in tailed monkeys.

Many animals have that form of intelligence which we may call intelligent learning, but no other shows deliberate invention. It is true that the ape's free ideas are very rudimentary when compared with ours.

None the less, our chimpanzee who, instead of doing nothing at all, or of aimlessly fiddling with his two sticks until one chanced to fit into the other, saw beforehand that they would fit and would then serve his purpose—he was, albeit in a humble way, showing the same power which enables an engineer to design a bridge on paper instead of putting something up and trusting to luck that it will stand, or a physicist using his mathematical facilities to calculate how his atoms and electrons should behave if his assumptions are right, so that he can plan the crucial experiment which will tell him if they are right or no.

In mental life and mental powers a chimpanzee is less like a frog than he is like a man.

When we compare our human and our simian, not only when full-grown but during their respective developments as well, the resemblances increase.

Compared with a man, an adult chimpanzee has proportionately longer arms and shorter legs; so has an unborn chimpanzee compared with an unborn human being, but the difference is less: the ape fetus is more human, the human fetus more simian in its proportions.

During most of the latter half of its prenatal life, the human embryo, like the ape's, is covered all over with a coat of short, downy hair; so is an ape embryo of corresponding age.

Before birth, both ape and man shed this short hair and develop long hair on the head while remaining almost hairless on the body. Man retains this condition throughout life, while the newborn ape soon acquires its permanent garment of thick hair.

The skull shape of a chimpanzee is much more human before birth; and even the characteristic ape foot is in the fetus much less like a hand and much more human than later, and even after birth the human baby's foot, with its injured sole and eagerly prehensile toes, is charged with hints of a racial past spent in the trees.

In fine, man's structure and development reveal him as zoologically close kin to chimpanzees, gorillas and orangutans.

Through the invention of language he made free of a new mental country, to which he has no access; but he does not for that reason cease to be their close cousin, any more than a mentally defective child ceases to be the son of his father, any more than Shakespeare ceased to stand in normal blood-relationship with his cousins, because he entered realms of thought and expression of which they never dreamed.

SEC. 2. FOSSIL MEN

This testimony from structure and development is confirmed by the authentic voice of the past. Unfortunately, neither ape nor human happen to be preserved as fossils save with extreme rarity, so that we have as yet no such pretty series in our ancestry as in the ancestry of the horse; but the few remains which have been found tell an unequivocal story.

DEATH SUSPECT ESCAPES

Ashtabula, May 8—Raymond C. Oliver, 22, paroled convict and murder suspect, appeared in Ashtabula early today, was overpowered by his uncle, but eventually freed himself and escaped in a half of bullet. Ashtabula, Natick and Framingham police, together with State troopers, immediately began a manhunt throughout the district, but were unable to locate Oliver, who fled in a high-powered car with Vermont number plates.

Oliver entered the gas station of his uncle, Daniel Peterson, in Ashtabula. Peterson, who is also a policeman, grappled with his nephew and succeeded in overpowering him. He then telephoned the Framingham police, who, in turn, notified the Natick authorities.

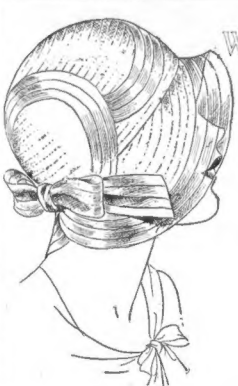

It is for the murder of Michael Christie, Natick storekeeper, that the 22-year-old convict is wanted. The time lost in telephoning was enough to permit Oliver to free himself. He ran out of the gas station, with his uncle after him, and made a getaway.

ASK PRISONERS TO SAVE CONVICTS FROM HOLOCAUST

Hopes at the state prison—overcrowded, insanitary and a fire-trap condemned as far back as 1876—Representative Finnegan drew attention to the fact that progress on the Norfolk camp is not even keeping pace with court commitments, let alone allowing removal of all the prisoners from Charlestown.

WANTS NO HOLOCAUST

Convict help is building the Norfolk camp and has been so engaged for nearly three years, making slow progress. In another 50 years or so, under present procedure, there may be a state prison at Norfolk. In the meantime, the 125-year-old Charlestown "Bastille" will have crumbled upon the heads of its occupants or have been visited by a holocaust such as that of the Ohio state penitentiary.

Massachusetts wants no repetition of the Columbian disaster, declared Representative Finnegan.

He pointed out that by the appropriation of about $200,000 for the employment of labor, the Norfolk colony with a new state prison could be completed in short order; the prisoners could be moved from Charlestown in a modern building and the land on which the old prison is located could be sold at more than enough to defray the cost of the new.

Reorganization has characterized the attitude of every Legislature since that of 1874 with relation to prison conditions in Massachusetts, but the present General Court can hardly sidestep the issue presented by Representative Finnegan's resolve.

The commission he proposed would consist of one Senator, two Representatives and two citizens who would be appointed by the governor. Its energies would be concentrated on the means to "junk" the Charlestown institution by speedily finishing the Norfolk camp.

DEMANDS ACTION

He deplored the "leisurely manner" in which the state is constructing the Norfolk colony while nearly 1000 lives are in jeopardy and will seek immediate action on his bill, which is as follows:

"Resolved, that a special unpaid commission is hereby established to consist of one senator, to be designated by the president of the Senate; two representatives, to be designated by the speaker of the House of Representatives, and two persons, to be appointed by the governor, for the purpose of devising methods and procedure for the speedy removal of the prisoners from the state prison at Charlestown to the new location at Norfolk.

"Said commission shall inquire into the present accommodations at Charlestown for such prisoners, and into the plan for the new state prison at Norfolk, with a view to co-ordinating and co-operating with the various officials and departments to bring forth plans and procedure for the removal of the prisoners as aforesaid at the earliest practicable date.

"Said commission may hold hearings, shall be provided with quarters in the State House or elsewhere, may expend such sums, not exceeding (blank) dollars, as the aggregate, as may be approved by the purpose of this resolve; and shall report its findings, together with its recommendations and drafts of legislation necessary to carry such recommendations into effect, by filing the same with the clerk of the House of Representatives on or before the first Wednesday in December of the current year, and shall, at the same time, file a copy thereof with the budget commission."

Transfer to Norfolk Can Start at Once

Coincident with Rep. Finnegan's plan, Howard B. Gill, superintendent of the Norfolk prison camp, told the Boston Evening American that an immediate legislative appropriation of $175,000 would provide for the removal of at least 25 Charlestown prisoners to Norfolk.

Further expenditures, probably $200,000, would make it possible to transfer and maintain at Norfolk 150 more inmates before the first of November.

This is comparatively nothing when compared with the fact that nearly 2000 lives are imperiled in the obsolete structure at Charlestown.

It is only four times the amount being spent now to bolster up a crumbling pen, which will eat up many times that sum and still will be a menace.

It is a mere drop in the bucket of a problem that in 1920 totaled over 62 millions of dollars.

DROP IN BUCKET

Sup. Gill told the Boston Evening American today that he was familiar with the hazardous and medieval conditions at Charlestown and was anxious and willing to do anything within his power to help relieve them.

"It is a matter of money," he said, "I can accommodate more prisoners here at the colony immediately if the necessary money for their maintenance and supervision is provided."

By November 1, we will have completed two units which will accommodate 150 prisoners. I have the money to complete the construction work, but an additional $200,000 will be necessary for maintenance until the appropriation of April, 1931, is made.

Property for the new state prison was purchased three years ago. Since that time the mile long wall enclosing the 37 acres has been built at a cost of $100,000. The work on the wall occupied two years. The two prison units nearing completion cost $115,000.

Of the 112 men actually employed in construction work 21 are civilian foremen of various trades.

There are 32 prisoners—used as artisans and 32 prisoners employed as unskilled laborers.

In the summer of 1929, representatives of the State Building Trades Council, representing all crafts, recognized the policy of the American Federation of Labor permitting inmate labor to be used on work for the use of the state.

An agreement was reached with Sup. Gill in which the latter undertook to start craftsmanship classes among the prisoners, giving them courses in the various trades.

From a class of 10 in a given trade the best man is selected and he is given apprentice recognition by the union officials. This plan is calculated to prevent flooding the market with half-skilled labor.

With his construction force, a combination of convict and civilian labor, now functioning smoothly, Sup. Gill believes that under the circumstances building progress is being made at as fast a rate as it would if the work was done by civilians exclusively.

"But the amount of progress made in the future toward the ultimate completion of the prison depends solely upon the size and frequency of money appropriations," he declared.

Construction of the new prison and its conduct is attracting nation wide attention. It is a new experiment in penology. Investigators of the social service branch of the Rockefeller Foundation studied it at first hand for several weeks and have reported favorably upon it.

President Hoover is indirectly responsible for Gill being superintendent of the institution. While connected with the Department of Commerce under then Secretary Hoover, Gill was designated to make a survey of state prisons.

He also made a survey of federal prisons for the Department of Justice and in 1927 became associated with the Massachusetts Department of Correction. He is a graduate of the Harvard Business School and for 10 years was in the publishing business.

The basis of Gill's penology theories is segregation. He roughly classifies all prisoners as follows: Ten per cent are hopeless. They can't take care of themselves. They will spend most of their lives in prison.

Twenty per cent, next higher, are morose who can be taught habits of industry and habits of decency; but books are of no use to them. These make the nucleus of prisoners. So much, he contends, they will do anything they are told and that is usually the cause of their trouble.

Forty per cent above that are capable of learning a trade and getting something of a technical education.

Twenty per cent more are able to absorb about as much education as they have a chance to get.

The final 10 per cent are "too smart." They are the educated racketeer type, the conscious criminals who would shoot in a minute if interfered with.

The top and bottom 10 per cent are the dangerous element in a prison and all you can do is keep hold of them," said Gill.

Tiny Simian Influences Circus Savages

By ALFRED D. WHELTON
Deep in the concrete recesses of Boston Garden, a tiny simian, less than three pounds and pure white of fur, wields its mighty influence over the life-work of a man.

The little monkey in Sarag, pronounced sacred by the Ubani savages of the Kikuyu, and Barnum & Bailey show, and the key to their peace or discontent. The man is Dr. Eugene Bergler, French explorer and authority on Darkest Africa.

A few weeks ago, Dr. Bergler cited, the big show moved into Madison Square Garden, New York.

The savages were allotted their exhibition stand and the show was ready to go on. Then the white monkey was missed.

Raucous lament from the savages greeted the news of the loss and they not only refused to move, but worked themselves into a mood that would prevent any activity anyway. When the shuffle of moving was over, the monkey was found tucked in a corner and free from harm. The savage demeanor improved and the doctor breathed easier, but it took the savages a full week to return to their former selves.

The doctor brought the savages, four men and eight women, from the French Congo in darkest central Africa. He obtained permission of the French government with the proviso "If the natives are killing."

HALL OF FAME GETS 7 MORE DAY STATER

New York, May 8 (AP).—The hall of nine persons who have been elected to the Hall of Fame at New York University was unveiled today, filling the last of the pedestals for 43 celebrities. The busts are: John Quincy Adams, sixth President of the United States; George Bancroft, historian; James Fenimore Cooper, author; James Russell Lowell, poet and critic; Elias Howe, inventor; Patrick Henry, patriot and orator; Horace Mann, educator; John Lothrop Motley, historian; and Joseph Story, associate justice of the Supreme Court. Descendants in most cases will unveil the busts. With the exception of James Fenimore Cooper and Patrick Henry, all are of Massachusetts origin. The seven from Massachusetts will be honored by a representative of Gov. Frank G. Allen and Dr. Daniel L. March, president of Boston University. The bust of Patrick Henry will be unveiled by Gov. Jon G. Pollard of Virginia and his daughter, Suzanne. Plans called for Elder Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York to unveil the bust of James Fenimore Cooper.

THE DAILY HUBBUB

By ARTHUR SKELDING

BLACK CAT INDUSTRY

ERNEST CROWWELL, who conducts the general store at T. Wharf, carries a sideline of black cats. The spinners' superstition of the sea that it is good luck to have aboard the vessel a black cat still prevails. Ernest sells everything from marlin spikes to bunk mattresses. He also carries cigar cakes. These are the sailors' favorite desert. But the black cat is being Ernest no mean profit. He keeps a score of them, mostly females of course. He is spending up production now for the spring demand. The ship masters all along the coast come to Crowwell's store when they need a new cat. They get lost or drowned or something like that every now and then. The upkeep on the stock is hardly anything. Ernest merely the trouble of picking them out. Once in a while Ernest gets a kitten off color. The market calls for pure black; nothing else will do. Thus the problem of disposing of his waste product. The Monkeys must go. Visitors to T. Wharf may have one for the asking. If Ernest is so unfortunally as to have one in stock.

HOME IN HIS B. V. D.'S

May Days and smooth water bring out the amateur rowers on the Charles. The sports continue for each exerciser in earnest. Some time a pair of running pants or an abandoned union suit will be discarded in the water. The skills are frequent. A young Tech student was out one sunny day this week in his B. V. D.'s.

D. V. He cruised around the course for some time then pulled for the dam near the East Cambridge shore. A wind came up and it took him a long time to get back to the boat landing. The attendant had gone home. The lockers were closed and he couldn't get his clothes. He ran back to the dormitory in his B. V. D.'s. "I'm a spectator on the Esplanade."

LONGFELLOW, STILL

WALKER Joseph De Virgilio, (nom de plume Longfellow), who strolls up and down Washington and Tremont streets on stilts for a few hours advertising various wares, is a unique man. As Joe puts it, "I get my living in a funny way. I'm always above the crowd. He stands nine feet tall, including three extra feet of wooden prop. Joe carries all sorts of propaganda banners. One he carried the banner for a man who had lost his wife. He failed to produce the wife and the man never paid him. Such are the hazards of the game. Joe is a college graduate and has also taken special extension courses in advertising and selling. He did this in order to sell himself and also assist his clients with business counsel. Like all street artists, he is temperamental. Joe cannot work indoors. Office routine bores him. He likes the air. . . and in a fashion gets around in his own healthy. Sometimes he gets it in reality. Still walking is not such a soft job and after every block or so Joe tries to find a parked truck upon which to sit and rest. He can't sit in door ways without having his legs hang out into the sidewalk. . . pedestrians get tripped up. The truck seats are best; just the proper height from the sidewalk. Joe sometimes moves on and give him the air. He gets funny salutations from miscegenating gapers. "Why don't you go to work?" and "How's the weather up there?" For the last salutation he has a squirt gun ready to shoot. "It's all in the day's business," says Joe.

JACK HURD AND WIFE KILLED IN AUTO PLUNGE

Wilmington, N. C., May 8 (AP).—The bodies of Jack V. Hurd, prominent Pittsburgh business man and sportsman, and Mrs. Hurd, killed in an auto wreck here last night, today were being held in Wilmington morgue awaiting arrival of Mr. Hurd's brother, N. S. Hurd, from Pittsburgh.

The accident occurred near a bridge in the northern part of the city. The Hurd's were en route from their winter home at Pinehurst to visit Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Phillips of Wilmington when their auto left the road at a curve and plunged into a creek. Mr. and Mrs. Hurd were prominent in golfing and social circles at Pinehurst. Hurd was the former husband of Dorothy Campbell Hurd, noted woman golfer. They were divorced in 1922 after she had filed a suit charging cruel and barbarous treatment, and Hurd a counter suit charging desertion. The master in the divorce proceedings found "Mrs. Hurd love golf and indulges in it to the exclusion of her marital relations." Hurd testified that when she was playing golf she was writing for golf magazines.

Magoun Sq. Reunion to Be Held Next Week

Among prominent officials invited are Mayor John J. Murphy, Congressman Charles L. Underhill, Senator Warren C. Daggett, Rep. Joseph J. Borgetti, Chief of Police Danahy and Judge Malcolm B. Sturtevant.

Butler and Draper at Phillips Dinner

William M. Butler and Eben S. Draper, opposing candidates for the Republican nomination for United States senator, will make their first appearance of the campaign together at a dinner to be given by the Roosevelt Club to former Minister Phillips, Thursday, May 15, at the Somerset Hotel. R. M. Washburn, president of the club, stated today that the club members are being polled on the prohibition issue. Baiting, he said, will close on May 15.

It Is Still True!

True—not only after twenty years, but after 64 years, a bad bunion needs a good shoe! It was true 64 years ago when James Coward established his business in a little shop in Greenwich Street, in New York City. . . established it with the high ideal of making the most comfortable shoe that could be found anywhere.

As James Coward studied and worked to make more comfortable shoes, he realized that many people are bothered with painful and enlarged joints; so he resolved that he would design a shoe which would help these suffering people. Finally, he succeeded in designing a shoe which not only relieved the pain of feverish, swollen joints, but minimized their disfiguring appearance.

Each year Coward Bunion Shoes have grown in popularity. . . each year they have given comfort and relief to thousands of aching feet.

This shoe has an inbuilt arch, which relieves the painful bunions.

Thousands are learning to know the Three Distinct Types of Ginger Ale Flavor

Here we show how to get even greater pleasure from this sparkling drink than ever before!

We urge that you make the "Taste Test" described below.

THERE are three distinct types of ginger ale flavor! And Clicquot Club makes them all!

Many people have failed to find the flavor that particularly suits their taste, but they do not realize that there are two other flavors which might please them.

Already it has been a revelation to thousands—the simple comparative test which we are now urging people to make!

Choose from these three flavors the ginger ale you like best

To make this test you go to your dealer and get a bottle of Clicquot Club Golden, a bottle of Clicquot Club Pale Dry, and a bottle of Clicquot Club Sec. Sample them all, one by one. Note the mellowness of them. And note especially the difference in their flavor!

Clicquot Club Golden has long been known as a delightful, healthful beverage, an especial "treat" for children. . . Clicquot Club Pale Dry is famous for its beady "dry" flavor either in recipe drinks or alone. . . and Clicquot Club Sec is very dry, the ginger ale supreme! You are sure to find, in one of these ginger ales, exactly the flavor you have been looking for.

Remember, please, that these three ginger ales are alike as regards quality. All are made from finest ingredients. Pure water from deep rock springs. Pure Jamaica ginger. Finest table sugar. Real fruit flavors.

And all Clicquot Club ginger ales are fully carbonated to give zip and sparkle.

Nor is this all. Clicquot Club is aged six months in the making, for the sake of a finer, richer flavor. And, as a final guarantee of purity, all Clicquot Club beverages come only in clean new bottles—bottles never used before.

These Clicquot Club ginger ales are at your dealer's now. In all the wanted flavors—Golden, Pale Dry, Sec. Remember to say "Clicquot Club" because it is only Clicquot Club which offers you a choice of the three types of ginger ale flavor.

For your pleasure The Clicquot Club Eskimos—every Friday evening at 9 o'clock, New York Time, from WFAP and associated stations.

Paris Originates a Suitable Spring Coat

EMERALD GREEN CHIFFON evening frock from the collection of latest by Augustenback. Three circular flounces form the bolero. (Sketched in Paris.)

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American, Paris, May 8.

EVEN IF YOU are well suited, there are times when your thoughts are likely to be coated over with a desire for a new afternoon wrap, one that will adequately convey the luxury of leisure hours spent in delightful surroundings.

Despite the prevalence of the suit there is a rising demand here for smart afternoon coats and wraps to be worn at functions where the suit, however good looking it may be, does not somehow seem quite adequate to properly grace the occasion. And, so, much more are to be found in the majority of the new collections, and they are being rapidly purchased by the smartest women here.

Although luxurious fabrics and furs are used, the wrap of the moment manages to retain an air of simplicity and femininity. This is due in part to the absence of superfluous detail and complicated silhouette, and makes for a much more desirable garment than was the voluminous and richly embellished wrap of other seasons. Whether trimmed with silver fox or sable, the afternoon coat manages to retain the true tailored effect that we have adopted as the sartorial trade mark of today.

The sketch of the afternoon coat shown here today is of a model featured in the new collection of Paquin. It is of "heavy black crepe mongol with a small low cape collar bordered by a single skin of silver fox. Turned back, circular cuffs are caught up beneath a triangle of the same fur. The coat is not quite full length and dips down in back. Circular cord set in at either side afford a slight flare. Chiffon is being extensively employed for evening frocks just now, with emphasis on the shimmery fabrics in all sorts of alluring shades and hues. Emerald green chiffon was used to make the very youthful and attractive evening frock, shown herewith. It is from Augustenback, who is having much success this season.

Three circular flounces with the fullest caught at regular intervals from the bolero, the pelum and the skirt flounce all of them important highlights of the model. A flat belt of the fabric stiffened at the back, is placed just above the hips and fastened with a strap and emerald buckle.

HEAVY BLACK CREPE mongol afternoon coat with a shallow cape collar bordered by a single skin of silver fox. It is a Paquin offering. (Sketched in Paris.)

AIR SERVICE TO SPRINGFIELD IS OPENED

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The first flight in the new Boston-Springfield-Albany twice-daily air service was made by a trimotored Ford monoplane today.

Arriving on time at 8:30, from Springfield, the ship waited only five minutes and then, because of reports of bad weather around Springfield, took off again for that city, an hour ahead of time.

The new line, operated by the New England and Western Air Transportation Co., Inc., offers 50-minute service between Boston and Springfield, and a little over two hours for the trip to Albany.

Passengers will be loaded in front of the Administration Building for the present, until arrangements can be made to deal with them otherwise.

According to Joseph C. F. H. between Boston and Albany, will be $10, with the Springfield-Albany trip, one-half that amount. From Springfield to New York the fare will be $7. The fare will be as low as for a two-hour trip, if a five-minute layover at Springfield is before leaving for New York.

C. E. Corson of Springfield is president of the new company and Harry Tall, also of Springfield, is treasurer.

Publisher Black's

Air Tour Near End

San Francisco, May 8 (AP)—Van Meter Black, publisher of the Baltimore Sun, neared the final stage of his world airplane tour today as the ship bearing him and his plane from Tokyo, neared San Francisco. Only a flight across the continent remains. Black began his flight at Croydon Airfield, London, Feb. 9, making the journey across Europe and Asia by easy stages. He left Yokohama April 28.

Liquor From China

Seized in Chicago

Chicago, May 8 (AP)—First intimation of Chicago receiving suspected intoxicants from the Orient was given today by railway enforcers who reported seizure of a cask of Chinese spirits by federal authorities. The shipment was billed as bamboo sprouts. The shipment, found in the Sun Line yards, was seized to prevent its being shipped by boat at Vancouver, B. C., whence it came to Chicago by rail.

Say "Lie Detector" Solved Chicago Murder Case

Chicago, May 8 (AP)—A vanishing act of a suspect device for solving crime was claimed today to the effect that the "lie detector" developed at the University of Chicago had solved the murder of M. A. Douglas, strangled in a hotel room Monday.

Leonard Keeler, who perfected the "lie detector," said the instrument had been used on a number of sailors at the Great Lakes naval training school and that two had confessed the slaying. Coroner Herman N. Bandeen declined to confirm Keeler's statement.

AFTERNOON FATIGUE AVOIDED

Energy Can Be Quickly Restored By This Simple Method

Eating between meals is often prescribed by doctors especially for those working at high speed in offices and stores.

Energy food, in compact and inexpensive form, is easy to get for such "snacks," at news and cigar stands. The popular candy bar and the little packets of sweet cookies are outstanding examples of what is offered. Then there are the soda fountains where milk drinks and carbonated beverages can be enjoyed.

Doctors and food chemists who have given candy or flavored drinks to workers have discovered that these foods restore energy quickly. The fact that the tests have been made in the late afternoon when vitality is low, makes the results more significant.

Sugar, in addition to supplying energy, can help in promoting a more satisfying diet. These foods rich in vitamins, roughage and minerals can be much improved in flavor by adding a dash of sugar in cooking or when serving them. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

140 NAVY PLANES PUT ON BOSTON'S GREATEST AIR SPECTACLE

FORMATIONS MANEUVERS OVER CITY

64 Then Land at Airport for Refueling, While Others Go to Other Cities

Boston craned its collective neck today as 140 navy airplanes dived over the city in a naval aerial demonstration. Flying in a variety of formations, the ships afforded the city the greatest air spectacle it has yet seen.

Of the total number, 64 of the planes landed at the Boston Airport, where the crews lunched in the new restaurant of the administration building while their ships were being refueled.

The remaining ships split up formations, some going to Lowell, some to Springfield and the rest to Hartford.

ARRIVE AT NOON

Although the ships landed in formation, they were not flying in any particular order, only one trifling mishap occurred. This was when Chief Aviation Pilot C. P. Lantieri, with Chief Aviation Machinist Mate C. E. Lee and a newspaperman, George Gordon of New York, as passengers, found himself headed for a ditch and unable to turn right because his leader was on that side. The ship rolled slowly into the ditch, with her left wheel in mud and her propeller digging a hole in the sand. No damage was done, however, even to the propeller, and the ship was hauled back to firm ground and landed into line.

Starting for New England from Valley Stream, N. Y., the planes of the Atlantic flight appeared over Boston at noon.

On the way up, the motor of a ship in charge of Chief Aviation Pilot Donald Wright, cut out dead in the water. La Salle Academy, which had been on the municipal golf links at Providence, Rhode Island, had the fuel line and took off for Boston at noon.

SEEN BY THOUSANDS

The huge fleet of planes, in their various types of formations, brought a standstill of pedestrians in the streets and a constant procession of ships of workers to windows and up on roofs.

More than 5000 spectators were at the airport and they held their breath in wonder as the ships, in formations of three, came in fast from the west, their wheels seeming barely to clear the tops of the buildings.

No sooner were the wheels of one formation touching down at the airport and they held their breath in wonder as the ships, in formations of three, came in fast from the west, their wheels seeming barely to clear the tops of the buildings.

Some of the 140 Navy Planes That Soared Over Boston Today

The greatest aerial demonstration ever seen in Boston took place today when 140 U. S. Navy planes flew over the city in battle formation of several groups or squadrons. This photo showing two of the groups was taken by a staff photographer from the roof of the Boston Evening American building, Wintthrop square.

Sixty-five of the planes circled about over the city several times before landing at Boston airport to refuel. All from Curtiss airport at Valley Stream, Long Island, passing over Providence en route. When they left here they made for New York by way of Springfield and Hartford.

Garrett Case Prosecution Hinges on Sullivan

Until John F. Sullivan, former proprietor of the Ritz Hotel, and now a voluntary patient at the Massachusetts State Hospital, at Danvers, is available as a government witness, Oliver B. Garrett and others named as graft seekers in the attorney-general's inquiry will not go on trial.

If Sullivan is declared insane by alienists, prosecution against Garrett will be dropped definitely. This was indicated last night by both Dist-Atty. William J. Foley and Damon E. Hall, until recently Attorney-General Watson's special assistant in the Garrett investigation.

Hall communicated with Foley and advised him strongly against proceeding against Garrett and others on the bribery and graft-taking charges "until Mr. Sullivan is available."

Until Sullivan is available the only criminal prosecution that will be taken will be that charging fraud in the securing of his pension against Garrett. It was stated at the district attorney's office yesterday. The others named are not connected with this specific charge.

PENSION CASE TOMORROW
An indictment charging Garrett with fraudulently obtaining his pension will be sought from the Suffolk grand jury starting tomorrow. The charge of fraud in connection with the granting of the pension to Garrett will be put before the grand jury without naming anyone and may result in a number of indictments being returned.

A few days ago Hall wrote to Foley, declining to accept an offer to prosecute Garrett and others, and stated at the time that the case was an easy one and that a joint trial lawyer could easily connect those charged with bribery and graft-taking.

CAN'T REUSE BLINDLY
Dist-Atty. Foley absolutely refused to comment on this angle of the latest developments as far as the criminal prosecution of Garrett and others is concerned. He declared that he had been in conference with Hall and that the latter had discussed the plans in prosecution with him and that he had advised him against proceeding until Sullivan was available.

"I'll prosecute Garrett and any others against whom there is evidence of violation of any law, and I'll waste any time about it," Foley declared. "I want the public to know, however, that we can't rush into this thing blindly and without having available the chief witness."

"Mr. Hall, who knows just what evidence there is with which to proceed, is anxious to cooperate and I appreciate this. He has advised me against hurrying the prosecution without this witness, and I shall heed his advice. That's all there is to it."

Radcliffe, Harvard Grad to Wed June 7
A "Harvard-Radcliffe romance" will culminate June 7 when Miss Barbara Brigham, 23, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Brigham of 13 Upland rd., Cambridge, becomes the bride of John L. Whitely, 22, of Brooklyn, who will finish a two-year course at the Harvard School of Business Administration before the ceremony will be held.

Miss Brigham was graduated from Radcliffe College with the class of 1928. Her fiancé was graduated from Harvard in 1928 and since that time has studied at the business school.

FLED TO ROOF, WIFE SAYS

How her husband threw her out of bed and forced her to flee to a roof clad in her nightgown, was described today in Middlesex court by Mrs. Louise Lapham Cotsona in her divorce suit against Sam Cotsona, Cambridge, divorcee.

Mrs. Cotsona, now living at a boarding house at Back Bay, swore that on the grounds of cotsona, and about five o'clock.

Cotsona denied yesterday that he ever married her, but admitted paternity of two children. In his rage he pulled a mattress out from under me and threw me on the floor," she told Judge Charles N. Harris. "I climbed out a window as in a flat roof to get out of his way and stayed there some time before I thought it was safe enough to go back."

She told the court that she met Cotsona at Camp Dix, N. J., during the war and he told her the laws of New Jersey and that he had a verbal agreement to marry her.

BARS ROFFMAN FROM MALDEN HIGH NINE

School Board Will Permit the Rum-Runner to Be Valedictorian, However

Joseph Roffman, Malden high school rum-runner, convicted about a year ago, has been reinstated in school with full credit—but he is not to be allowed to play on the baseball team.

At a meeting of the school committee last night, Headmaster Thornton Jenkins was asked if he would object to the boy becoming valedictorian of his class. He replied that he would not. The boy has another year in school before he is graduated.

The committee thought it advisable at the present time to keep Roffman off the school team. The father has been convicted of carrying and the family home picketed for a year, necessitating their moving away.

According to Mr. Jenkins, if the boy was not sufficiently prepared after his year's suspension and that his membership on the school team might attract an unpleasant attention to it.

MAYOR SENDS $100 CHECK TO DWYER FUND

Contributions for Family of the Slain Hub Policeman Reach Total of $709.91

The Dorchester Board of Trade fund being raised for the widow and children of Brooklyn B. Dwyer, slain policeman, has reached $709.91, Charles D. M. Bishop, treasurer, "said today."

A letter was received from Mayor James M. Curley, endorsing the fund and contributing $100, with the declaration that the case is a most meritorious one, and the responsibility for extending aid should be regarded both as a duty and a privilege.

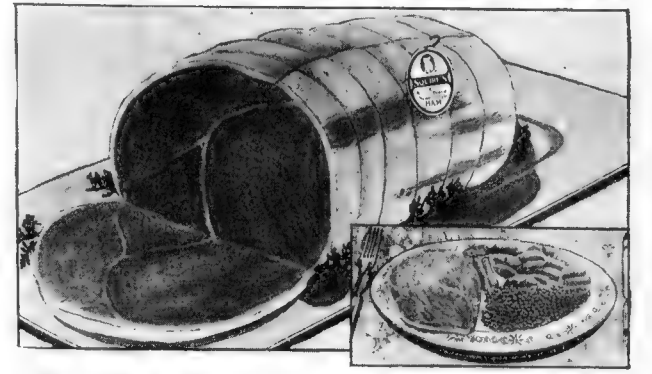

Gov. Frank G. Allen wrote expressing his commendation of the fund.

Treasurer Bishop announced that arrangements are being made for benefit baseball games at which will be auctioned off and other items furnished by the Fairmount Electric Company, will be sold, or the fund.

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in run-downness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tastes and acts as quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quick, how effective it is. It is the only safe, reliable, and sure remedy. Please let it show you now.

We are going to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acid. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company since 1880.

The clean and simple Radio Corporation, and the fact that the company's stock operators in the street have combined in the backing of this growth organization, bring before us one of the select groups of companies that are in the van of the next upward price movement.

Charlestown's Ancient State Prison Invites Holocaust Like Columbus

Since 1874 the Massachusetts Legislature has been discussing plans for the elimination of the unsafe, unsanitary, inhumane State penitentiary at Charlestown. Condemned in 1876, condemned at frequent intervals since, this great State still pens its "unfortunates and criminals" in this Charlestown "dungeon," in dark, unhealthy cells.

Everybody admits the place is a disgrace to the State. It is a breeder of criminals, as well as an ever present menace to the lives of the 900 or more men confined there. These conditions have been accepted for years as a subject for debate and an occasional feeble gesture looking toward elimination of this pesthole.

Yet the State seems to be unable, or unwilling, to get down to actual business.

Is Massachusetts going to sit back complacently and wait for another Columbus horror before it does what every legislator, every citizen, knows must be done?

TEAR DOWN THE 125-YEAR-OLD CHARLESTOWN PRISON!

Outside of the dangers inside the structure, it is poorly located. There is no chance whatever for amelioration of the plight of the prisoners in this congested section, hemmed in by railroad yards.

Massachusetts certainly should step up to 1930 in the care of its hostages to the law. She must house her prisoners in modern establishments outside the cities, where the men may have decent treatment and sanitary quarters.

The State has temporized for more than fifty years, and unless something is done at this session of the Legislature, it is liable to be that much longer before there is real relief. The prison farm plan at Norfolk is a good idea. But this plan itself shows the futility of temporizing with the situation. It will be at least three years before this structure will be completed, at present speed. In the meantime, prohibition and other things are turning in prisoners much more rapidly than they can be handled in or transferred from the Charlestown prison.

The Charlestown prison can never be made a good penitentiary, nor a safe one. The expenditure of $50,000 or so a year in temporary repairs for the past fifteen or twenty years is money thrown away. The place will never be anything but an unsafe, unsanitary and inhumane firetrap, unfit for man or beast. The officials in charge may try as they will, but Charlestown's prison will still be a crumbling disgrace. The State stands to get more than $1,000,000 from the sale of the site, it is understood. This money should be turned immediately into the construction of modern penal institutions that are safe, and are not crime colleges.

In a signed editorial printed April 29, 1930, in all Hearst papers, William Randolph Hearst wrote, in part:

"The prison system of the United States is an unendurable disgrace to a civilized country."

"Ours is the only civilized or semi-civilized country where such conditions exist."

"Our jail are 'Black Holes of Calcutta' reproduced repeatedly all over the country in State and Federal penons."

There, in few words, as if written with our own State penitentiary as an example, is a complete picture of our Charlestown prison!

Another farol opinion, based entirely upon conditions at Charlestown, is in the records as coming from Bishop Lawrence, when that noted divine said:

"When will that dungeon, fit only for the Middle Ages, the prison, be razed?"

To quote again on the editorial of William Randolph Hearst:

"There is something other to be done in the present deplorable criminal and penal situations than merely to make more jails. We have got to make less convicts. We have got to create a social system which will make more good citizens and fewer criminals."

Criminals must be classified in the light of modern psychiatric knowledge, the mentally sick treated accordingly, the first offenders separated from the mature malefactors; those who are reclaimable educated, vocationally guided and trained, and fitted to return to society.

Health Sanitation has reduced the sick population. Crime Sanitation will reduce the prison population.

There can be no real Crime Sanitation under conditions as they exist in our State prison today.

Are nearly 1,000 men confined in the penitentiary to continue longer to await in fear and trembling the day that finds them locked in their cells while merciless flames and smoke rush a horrible death upon them?

Which governor, which Legislature will have to assume the responsibility for the horror that is inevitable, sooner or later?

THE CHARLESTOWN PRISON MUST GO!

Why Lay Off Skilled Help?

Announcement of Navy Yard Decrease Surprises

Announcement from the Navy Department that more than one thousand skilled workmen will be laid off during the next thirty days at the Washington, Brooklyn and Mare Island Navy Yards will come as a painful surprise to the country.

This threatened reduction is in complete contrast with the course urged upon private enterprise by the Administration. Ever since the slump in the stock market last Autumn the Administration has been appealing to the business world to exert every effort to avoid reduction of employees or salaries.

In view of these appeals the Administration would seem to be bound to practice what it preaches. And that is far from what the Navy Department will be doing if it lays off hundreds of men all over the country just when prosperity is returning.

It is denied that the ratification of the London Naval Treaty has anything to do with these proposed reductions. It is contended that at the Washington Yard the force has caught up with all the orders for guns and gun mounts.

It is contended that at the other yards new construction is nearing completion and that vital changes in the designs of the new cruisers will delay progress on them for several months. If that is really the situation it would seem that the co-operation of Congress should be enlisted to provide appropriations for repairs and maintenance and odd jobs that will keep these forces of skilled workmen intact until they are required several months hence.

Here is an opportunity for the Administration to give the country a practical demonstration of that intelligent and scientific planning to prevent unemployment that the Administration has been commending to private enterprise.

If the Administration, with all the hundreds of millions of dollars that it is spending on public works, cannot find ways and means of keeping a thousand surplus workmen at the Navy Yards employed for several months, the country will rightly come to the conclusion that Washington is better at preaching than at practice.

While, on the other hand, if the Administration insists upon laying off these hundreds of workmen, the country may well come to the conclusion that the Administration thinks more of making a cheap and tawdry play to the pocket element of the country, or of underselling to influence the Senate in regard to the London Naval Treaty, than it does to carrying out its own promises and purposes with respect to the vital matter of restoring prosperity.

The New Commissioner

Boston Expects Quick Action From Him

Boston's police department now has as its commanding officer a strong, courageous commissioner, Eugene O. Hultman. Known as a strict disciplinarian, yet always quick to reward efficiency and rectitude, Commissioner Hultman seems to be ideally fitted for the task of cleaning out the bad spots in the department, and of re-establishing the morale of the men under him.

To accomplish these things, so vital to the welfare of the people of Boston, the commissioner must be constructive, rather than destructive. His first task, naturally, will be to bring about the removal or punishment of such dishonest and incompetent officers as have thrown the entire department into disrepute. Then comes the real labor of putting the department back into high gear as a smoothly operating machine, efficient and beyond challenge as to its integrity.

Looking back over his record of service for the city and State, Mr. Hultman brings to the people of Boston the assurance that he is fully capable of filling the commission's chair as it should be.

A graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a figure in the public life of the community, Commissioner Hultman has earned the respect of his home city, and merits the co-operation of every citizen in the work before him.

Boston expects quick action. It will await with interest his first moves.

Not So Hot -- By Harry Murphy

Real Americans will approve this cartoon of Mr. Harry Murphy's. It is just the sort of reception that the London naval pact deserves at the hands of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The public will applaud because this sort of reception means that before the treaty leaves the Senate it will be the subject of closest study and inspection.

It means that all the secret negotiations that preceded the calling of the London conference, and all the secret communications that passed between the Hoover administration and the conference, all the diplomatic "give and take," and all the facts surrounding the parleying, will be brought out on the table and placed in full public view.

Uncle Sam never has lost a war and never has won a conference. The nation is entitled to know the "inside" of the London conference.

Three-Minute Journeys Abroad

Last time I told you a little about Prague, the capital of Czechoslovakia. I left you standing in front of the Old Town Hall, with its famous clock which shows every hour a pageant of the Christ and His Apostles.

If we continue to wander through the streets of the old town, we will Viavaz was named after Charles IV of Bohemia, one of the most illustrious men the country (now, of course, a part of Czechoslovakia) ever knew. Charles IV ruled in the middle of the fourteenth century and it was then that the bridge which bears his name was started.

It was Charles who also founded the famous University of Prague and who was responsible for much of the early expansion of the city. The Charles Bridge is an extremely graceful link between the old town and the so-called Little Town. It crosses the river in golden arches executed with extreme precision. Surmounting a hill over the Little Town one of the bridge is the famed Cathedral of St. Vitus.

However, two or three of the old halls, as sort of museums, and in them one feels the glory and pomp of court life in Bohemia's early days.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 8.—New York has a big army of swivel chair adventurers — dreamers chained to skyscraper desks who ride broomsticks into imaginary lands. In their rationalist world they hunger for the jungle, the velvet and the wild places they will never see.

There are a hundred little nooks harboring filibusters who plot revolutions that will not be realized over speakers' tables. The Captive Club in New York is one of the biggest organizations of its kind in the world. It satiates an ache of cliff-dwelling romanticism.

Who have scarcely crossed the island's boundary lines sit about in pop-eyed eagerness to hear Canadian accounts of the exploits of explorers, tiger and elephant hunters who have returned to a placid civilization after riding with sleek along outer rims of the world.

Nearly all the backers of the Byrds, the Stefansons and other intrepid wanderers are men whose lives are attuned to the bump of street cars and the honk of motors. No spot in the world was so deeply interested in the search of Kermit Roosevelt for the giant pandas as New York.

There are innumerable men who spend their hours at the huge sporting goods establishment, prowling about, examining guns, pup tents and outdoor cooking outfit. Many equip themselves for expeditions and wind up jolling on the sands of Palm Beach.

One rich man, confined to a wheel chair as the result of a collected football accident, owns an elaborately equipped gun room and a room maintained on Fifth ave. He spends many hours there dreaming. Hundreds of metropolises own packs of bunting dogs they never use.

The life of adventure is responsible, too, for many who claim the queer lost streets of the town after midnight. Every policeman on an isolated patrol knows them. They are staking, and a little pathetically—the thrill that is as elusive as the rainbow.

Ruth Etting, the blues crooner, is credited with the record for learning her part—four songs, many lines and "business"—in the shortest time. She was engaged 24 hours before a musical show opened and swept through her role without a slip.

The memorizing art is highly developed among magazine editors, too. One, whose literary world knows as "R. L.", reads a manuscript in chunks of several paragraphs. He requires only a second or so for each page, summing, through, with lightning rapidity, and those who try to trip him regarding details have failed.

Air in New York, scientists say, is pure as the driven snow, and it is the hour when most sillies and the most of the city are the badly ventilated night clubs.

My nomination for the most annoying pests hereabouts are those who grow factions at expense of waiters and waitresses. One night in 1928 at a party where I was invited, a waiter who had endured a barrage of orders and demands for drinks and food, said to me: "I have been forced to wait on you, but I don't have to submit to unbecoming insults. And he uncorked a sock to the jaw—and walked out amid an outbreak of hand claps. The hand clapper being none other than the correspondent.

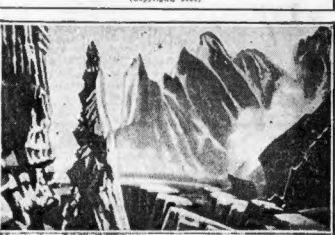

Verns Porter heard it a half-hour late. A gentleman referred to a tempest in a teapot as "a tempest in an oceanic teacup."

Red Hot, Freezing Cold

Be Glad You Live on the Earth

(Copyright, 1930)

MERCURY'S RED HOT SIDE

Mercury, one of the planets traveling with us around the sun, always has one side turned toward the sun, exposed to constant heat, the other side turned away from the sun, stealing no heat or light from our great star. Thus our moon travels around the earth. One side of the moon we have never seen.

Scriven Bolton presents these two pictures contrasting the probable appearance of Mercury, the upper picture showing the hot side, blazing in intensity, and the lower the cold, frigid side, always dark, temperature probably 450 degrees below zero.

The hot side is said by scientists to be probably eight or ten times as hot as the hottest temperature known on earth.

Mr. M. Antoniad, learned European observer of the planets, has been studying Mercury through the thirty-three-inch telescope at the Meudon Observatory, largest refracting telescope in Europe.

You learn from these careful observations that Mercury is 60,000 miles nearer the sun than the earth is and travels around the sun in eighty-eight days, as against the earth's 365-day "round trip."

The nearer the sun the swifter the journey around it, to prevent falling to the surface.

The heat on Mercury is said to be so great that if there are any rivers there they must be composed of something else than water.

THE FROZEN SIDE, 450 DEGREES BELOW

water, something perhaps like melted lead. Rivers of water would soon vanish in steam in the intense heat.

And on the cold side any waters that exist are probably frozen into ice many miles thick.

We ought to be very grateful that we live on this earth with its mild Summers and mild Winters, turning all sides toward the sun's light and warmth.

But we could imagine a very interesting life on this cold Mercury if we could adapt ourselves to conditions there.

Young people might like to live on the hot side and enjoy themselves.

Older people might prefer the dark, cold side to spend their last years studying the outer universe, with perpetual night to provide uninterrupted astronomical studies.

By and with our sun's heat will vanish, in millions of millions of years.

One earth, with Mercury and all the other planets, will then be cold and lifeless.

But doubtless everything is arranged for the best, and we shall be well taken care of elsewhere, when that time comes, as we are now well taken care of.
